SCULPTURES

Veronica Mar's sculptural practice explores the essence of life through movement, balance, and the relationship between form and emptiness. Inspired by the rhythms of nature and the philosophy of duality, her organic, spiralling forms embody a continuous journey towards unity, growth, and wholeness.

Rooted in sacred geometry, each sculpture transcends its physical presence, becoming a powerful expression of energy and harmony. From intimate pieces to monumental installations, her works engage in a profound dialogue with their surroundings, transforming spaces into places of contemplation, connection, and inner balance.

COLLECTIBLE DESIGN

The memories and echoes of water.

The shape of this sculptural table is inspired by the beautiful textures found in canyons where immense rivers, seas, and oceans once existed.

The memories of water are reflected in its textures.

Inspired by the gentle play of sunlight on the sea surface, EBBA Sculpture Chair captures the ephemeral dance of light and water.

Its sculptural silhouette evokes liquid motion, as if shaped by the tides themselves. The flowing, openwork backrest mimics the shifting reflections of a calm ocean, while its delicate legs echo the graceful curves found in underwater forms.

Crafted in cast bronze with a hand-polished patina, and upholstered with soft suede, this piece offers both physical and spiritual balance.

The serene silence of rain mesmerizes me, and I'm captivated by the alluring scent of damp earth. I often became lost in contemplation during my childhood, captivated by the raindrops dancing into the water and etching those exquisitely poetic concentric circles.

This intimate and evocative memory inspired me to create this piece, which initially took shape in white acrylic stone.

Their more organic and gracefully rounded form captures the essence of a water droplet, bringing us back to a moment of contemplation and wonder.

To create this majestic piece, I was inspired by the spiral movement, eternal and omnipresent, and the primordial force that gives life.

This energy drives the universe and manifests at all scales, from DNA strands and plant growth to the vastest galaxies. This sculptural bench, conceived in 2011 for the international LG HiMacs competition, where it received a special mention, has evolved over the years.

I have developed it using noble materials such as marble, wood, steel, or brass. Wherever it is placed, this piece becomes a Totem, a living monument that honors and celebrates the eternal dance of life.

As a child, I loved swinging. That experience of boundless freedom made me feel like I was floating above the world. With this pieces, I wanted to capture that emotion, inspired by the delicacy of leaves falling in autumn.

Thus, the Autumn Leaf Swing was born, a swing shaped like a leaf, designed to embrace all ages.

This piece has come to life through various mediums, like bronze, lacquered aluminum, and carved wood, each adding its soul to the experience of flying between nostalgia and joy.

Ginkgo

Since immemorial, the Ginkgo Biloba, a living fossil, has been a sacred tree in Asia and a symbol of harmony and balance.

At a time when my sculptures were generated with ethereal and pure forms inspired by the dance of Yin and Yang, a collector challenged me to create a chandelier whose light evoked the warmth of the sun filtering through golden leaves.

The need to explore this duality throughout my work led me to seek natural symbols that resonated with my vision. In the Ginkgo, I found that ancestral vibration and energy embody stillness, movement, light, and shadow.

Thus, a collection of unique pieces was born, where each leaf reflects the infinite beauty of the Ginkgo, and the light emitted by its branches symbolizes that whisper of sunlight between the leaves.

PORTAL PAINTINGS

Portal Paintings

In my pictorial universe, color reveals itself as a powerful conductor of energy, capable of altering the mood and igniting the essence of the space.

Each color is selected with a subtle intention, from the whites that gently caress the soul with their serenity to the reds that evoke vibrant and passionate intensity.

Inspired by the serenity of Sumi-e, each stroke is a whisper in the emptiness of the canvas, an act of filling that transforms the space into a refuge of calm and reflection.

The Portals series stands as a vibrational journey where color becomes a sensory experience, resonating deeply with the viewer.
