

Veronica Man

I don't create objects... I materialize frequencies.

Each piece in this catalog is born from listening, to stone, to Wood that has held more than a century of silence,
to metal when it finds its own curve.
I work from sacred geometry because it is the language shared by the human body, the tree, and the galaxy, and from there I seek for each form not to describe nature,
but to make it present.

Five principles support everything I do,
Sacred Geometry as structure, Energy Harmonization as purpose, Beauty as Rigor, never as decoration,
the Memory and Transcendence carried by each material, and Matter as Message, because Bronze, Marble, or Oak already say something before I touch them.

A long-exposure photograph of a river flowing over large, mossy boulders in a dense forest. The water is blurred, creating a sense of motion, while the rocks are sharp and detailed. The surrounding forest is lush and green, with trees and foliage filling the background and sides of the river. The overall mood is serene and natural.

SCULPTURE TABLE

MAYU, the Quechua word for "river," is a cedar coffee table whose spiral form evokes the continuous flow of water.

*Carved from an eight year old fallen cedar,
its living grain and natural aroma
embody a quiet dialogue between matter,
energy, and nature, expressing balance
through organic form and presence.*

An aerial photograph of a river delta, likely the Totem River, showing a complex network of sandbars, silt deposits, and winding water channels. The colors range from light tan to dark brown, indicating different sediment compositions and water depths. The patterns are organic and fluid, characteristic of a natural river system in a deltaic environment.

*"All of my work reflects on quantum physics, on the energy we are,
on the search for inner harmony and equilibrium,
and on the vast potential we embody."*

Veronica Man

"Through minerals, sacred geometry, and intention, each piece is a Totem of Light, harmonizing spaces, inspiring inner growth, and inviting the soul toward freedom and self-fulfillment."
