

EBBA CHAISE LONGUE

"I have always believed the chaise longue is the most modern of objects, a piece made for one simple act: to stop. To lie down, let the gaze drift and allow time to dissolve.

I found its shape at the edge of the sea. I watched the waves arrive, rise, fold and withdraw, again and again, with a rhythm older than any thought.

Sunlight trembled on the surface, broke into reflections and gathered again. Standing there, I understood that contemplation is a tide, it comes to us when we stop resisting it.

"Ebba" means "tide" in Swedish. I drew this chaise longue as a wave caught at the moment it rests, a long and fluid line that receives the body the way the sea receives the shore. Its proportions follow the geometry of nature, so the body settles into it without thinking, as it would into warm sand.

Cast in bronze with a hand-polished patina and embraced by soft leather, it is a place to return to yourself. Here, the mind slows to the pace of the water and finds, in stillness, its own balance."
